From the Paris Gazette, dated July 8.

Warsaw, June 10.

THE Russians continue their March towards this Place, notwithstanding the Complaints that have been made to their General Prince Repnin, and the Russian Ambassadour Prince Dolgorucki, with whom the Bishop of Cujavia and other Senators, have made new Instances for making good at last the repeated Promises of his Czarish Majesty to recall his Forces out of the Territories of the Republick. The said Ambassadour upon this has given new Assurances that some of the Russian Regiments were marched back upon no other Account but to join the Troops coming from Mecklenbourg, and to prevent their Desertion. The Complaints made to the Duke of Mecklenbourg have been to no Purpose, the Duke having represented that those Troops were dismissed his Service, and that consequently they did no longer respect his Authority: So that in all Appearance Poland and Lithuania will not be freed of Foreign Troops, till effectual Measures are taken in the ensuing Diet to force them to withdraw; but to judge by what appears, it is not probable that they will meet at the Time appointed in their last Sessions at Grodno. A Detachment of the Polish Guards, making Part of the Troops who had been sent by the Palatine of Culm to exact of the City of Dantzick the Contributions they refused to pay, are marched from Thorn, carrying along with them the Prisoners they took in the Engagement which happened between the Forces of the Crown and the Garrison of the said City. When releasing of those Men was demanded of them, they answered, they could not do it, without Orders from the Great General, which the other Companies likewise expected, before they could leave the Quarters they had taken in the Palatinate of Marienburg. It is written from Livonia, that the Czar was expected at Riga the Beginning of next Month, and that in the mean time he is hastening the Imbarkation of the Land-Forces which are to be put on board his Fleet, which is speedily to put to Sea. The Russian Troops, who were on the other Side of the Borysthene in the Russian Part of the Ukraine, are advanced towards that River, which looked as if they designed to pass over and enter that part which belongs to Poland. Another Body are drawing together near Kiow; and the Cossacks of Zaporoek and the Calmuck Tartars, who are under the Czar's Dominion, have Orders to joyn that Body. Letters from Caminick mention, that new Troops arrive at Choczim to augment the Garrison of that Place, and that they go on with the new Fortification there, notwithstanding the Porte had given Assurances to the King and the Senate by the Envoy they lately sent, that they would punctually observe the Treaty of Carlowitz, by which it was stipulated, that no new Fortifications should be raised at Choczim; that the new Governour Abdi Basshaw had taken Possession of that Government, and that his Predecessor was set out for Bender, but when he was gone a little Way, the Cispig who accompanied him, produced an Order from the Grand Signior, that he should be strangled, and his Head sent to Constantinople, which was put in Execution accordingly: It is said this Punishment was inflicted upon him for having detained the Pay of the Janizaries and of the Tartars of Lpka, and committed great Exactions in his Government.

Extract of a Letter from Captain William Collier, Commander of His Majesty's Ship the Hind off Falmonth, June 25.

HAVING received Orders to proceed to the Grove, and look in to observe what Preparations the Enemy were making there, on the 21st Instant at half an Hour past One in the Afternoon I brought to off of that Place Westward of the Lee Neck of Land about two Miles, then I could see from my Deck and Main-Top only three Ships with Top-Masts up; one appeared to be a Ship of 50 or 60 Guns, with a Pendant flying, another with pretty tall Masts, but no Pendant; the other a small Ship; these had Sails bent; we could see about seven more with only their Tops over Head; and one of them on the Heel, and one appeared like a Ketch or Sloop with only one tall Pole Mast. This was every thing that appeared like Shipping (no Appearance of Transports or any thing like an Imbarkation.) I was so near the Shore as to see Men walk on the Sand without a Glass, and discover every thing in the Bay from my Deck, it being three Quarters Flood at the Time I was observing it.

Dublin, July 2.

Yesterday the Parliament met.

His Grace Charles Duke of Bolton, Lord Lieutenant General and General Governour of Ireland, his Speech to both Houses of Parliament: At Dublin, on Wednesday the 1st Day of July 1719.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

HIS Majesty's tender Care of the Security and Welfare of His good Subjects, hath moved Him at this time (when one part of Great-Britain hath been actually Invaded by a Foreign Force, in favour of the Pretender to His Crown) to call you together, to consult of the most proper Methods for continuing you in that Tranquillity and Peace you now enjoy; and His Majesty cannot doubt but that you will lay hold on this Opportunity, to make such further Provisions as shall be found necessary, to repel or suppress any Attempt which may be made, to involve this Kingdom in the Calamities of an Intestine Rebellion or a Foreign Invasion.

They deceive themselves who imagine, that the Designs of the Enemies of our Peace do not extend to Ireland as well as the rest of His Majesty's Dominions; and tho', through the Blessing of God on His Majesty's Councils, and indefatigable Endeavours for our Preservation, these Designs have been hitherto prevented from being put in actual Execution; yet it will become the Wisdom of a Parliament, to take such timely Precautions and provide such effectual Remedies as may render it impracticable to proceed further therein with any prospect of Success.

It is obvious and visible to every considering Man, That a good Agreement and Union among all Protestants will greatly contribute to this end, and the Numbers as well as strict Union of the Papists among themselves, together with their apparent Inclinations and Attachments to the Interest of the Pretender, seem to make it more immediately necessary at this time. In what manner a thing so desirable may be obtained, His Majesty leaves to your Consideration, and has commanded me to acquaint you, that as he hath the Welfare of the Church by Law Established under His peculiar Care, and resolves always to Support and Maintain it, so it would be very pleasing to him if any Method could be found (not inconsistent with the Security of it) to render the Protestant Dissenters more useful and capable of serving His Majesty and supporting the Protestant Interest than they now are; they having upon all Occasions given sufficient Proofs of their being well affected to His Majesty's Person and Government, and to the Succession of the Crown in His Royal House: And this I am ordered to lay before you as a thing greatly importing His Majesty's Service, and your own Security.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons,

As it hath been your constant Care to make Provision for the punctual Payment of the Army, and other the necessary Charges of the Government and publick Debts, I cannot doubt of your doing it now in such a Manner as will be for His Majesty's Honour, and the Interest of the Kingdom.

I have ordered the proper Officers to prepare the publick Accounts to be in a Readiness to be laid before you, by which you will see what is due to the the Establishment, and how far the Hereditary Revenue will fall short of supporting it for the future.

The Invasion with which this Kingdom has been threatened, hath also increased the publick Expence; and it will be worth your Consideration to take Care of the Fortifications, which are extremely out of Repair, notwithstanding what has been done to put them in a better Condition since the first Notice of the intended Invasion.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

I have nothing more to recommend to you, but that you will shew such Unanimity and Dispatch in your Proceedings, as may bring this Session to a happy Conclusion, to the Honour of His Majesty, and Good of this Nation.
